

More Czech institutions get Google Open Gallery treatment

<http://www.radio.cz/en/section/news/more-czech-institutions-get-google-open-gallery-treatment>

- 1 July 2014
- Google Art Project

Nine more galleries and museums in the Czech Republic have been given a virtual online presence through Google Cultural Institute technology. Prague's Kampa Museum and the National Gallery were already accessible via the system, which puts institutions' collections online as well as creating virtual tours of the spaces in question. They have been joined by the Václav Havel Library, Prague's Jewish Museum, the Moravian Gallery in Brno and six other institutions.

Ian Willoughby